

Church-Wallonia and Sundays

Church-Wallonia is a movement formed by Christian women and men who strive to provoke thinking and action from Catholics in Wallonia. It also encourages the Church to take position in the Walloon community, which is a pluralistic community. Its legislative and executive powers now have expanded because of the deep regionalization of the Belgian State. Sundays, beyond their traditional and -let's not forget- religious dimensions, are the occasion for other sociabilities. They contribute to the diversity of the "lives" of the people and groups of people. They symbolize, and call, a halt to the process of trivialization and commodification of time, that is, a reduced conception of time is a form of discounting of social and human wealth.
